Contoso uses an annual performance cycle supported by regular manager check-ins.

Goals: Employees and managers establish measurable goals during the first quarter or within 30 days of joining a new role.

Check-ins: Managers should conduct quarterly performance conversations.

Ratings: Annual ratings consider achievement of goals, demonstrated behaviors, collaboration, and role expectations.

Improvement plans: When performance is materially below expectations, a manager may establish a documented Performance Improvement Plan lasting at least 30 calendar days.

Promotion: Promotion decisions consider sustained performance, demonstrated scope, business need, and role availability. High performance does not automatically guarantee promotion.
